Make Cut Out Snowflakes Day

Ladies and gentlemen, start your crafting! Today is Make Cut-Out Snowflakes Day, just like you did when you were a kid. This crafty day isn't just for children, though. Making snowflakes is a fun thing to do for people of all ages. All you need is some paper, scissors, and a little imagination. Finding a template you can use online will make the project much easier to do, but since every snowflake is different, taking your time to make one freehand would be quite right. Don't be shy.

No two snowflakes are ever alike, so you are free to make yours however you want. Bring the winter wonderland indoors and cut out snowflakes today!

DID YOU KNOW?

Bagging an Invention

The familiar flat-bottomed paper bag owes much to inventor Margaret Knight. Working in the nineteenth century, she developed machinery that could fold and paste paper bags automatically instead of relying on hand production. When another person tried to claim her design, Knight defended her work and secured a patent in 1871. Her technology helped make sturdy, practical bags easier to manufacture for shops and everyday use.
