National Swap Ideas Day

Got a great idea? Maybe you have a few, and we all know that great minds think alike. September 10th is “National Swap Ideas Day.” This day encourages us to share a creative or helpful idea with someone, and to exchange thoughts on each other's ideas possibly creating more in the process! Sometimes, magic happens when a community joins forces to bring a plan to fruition. Swapping ideas today does not have to be done on a one-on-one basis. Often, groups with similar interests gather with a common goal in mind. The meetings are usually a social gathering. However, on occasion, groups with different skill sets, design talents, and ideas gather. They bounce sketches, questions, and eureka moments off each other, and suddenly a new idea develops. So why not pull some people together, and let the ideas flow?

Today in History

In 1999, Pedro Martinez pitched a near-perfect game against the New York Yankees. With a career that spanned from 1992 to 2009, he was recognized for his impressive winning percentage, low ERA, and high strikeout rate. Martinez was elected to the Baseball Hall of Fame in 2015.

DID YOU KNOW?

Pajamas Yes, Slippers No

New York is both the city that never sleeps and America's fashion capital. So it makes sense that slipper-wearing would be banned after 10pm in public places. After all, they would kill the vibe. So be sure to put on your dancing shoes and even dance in your pajamas because there's no law against that!
