International Day of Peaceful Communication

As a day that aims to encourage individuals and governments to solve conflict without resorting to any kind of aggression, the International Day of Peaceful Communication is observed every year around the world on this day. Founded by Ruben M. West in 2019, this day was created in order to raise awareness of the power that peaceful communication holds. As tensions all over the world continue to rise, we must do our part to encourage and engage in calm, rational, well-thought-out conversations so that we as a society can move forward and solve the problems of today and tomorrow. So today, spend some time in peaceful conversation with someone and remember that with peaceful talks and an open mind, almost any conflict can come to an end.

Today in History

In 2004, basketball forward Scottie Pippen announced his retirement from the NBA and the Chicago Bulls. He was a 7-time NBA All-Star, 3-time All-NBA First team and 8-time NBA All-Defensive First team inductee. Pippen was also a member of the U.S. Team at two Olympics Games.

DID YOU KNOW? The Amazon's Lack of Bridges

The Amazon River, which is the second-longest in the world, does not have many bridges, mainly because they are not necessary. This is due to the availability of ferries and boats, the high cost of building bridges across the extensive marshes, and the impracticality of floating bridges due to the varying width of the river between dry and wet seasons.
