Use Your Common Sense Day

Common sense often seems to be at a premium, but that doesn't mean we should give up on trying our best to use it! Use Your Common Sense Day is celebrated every November 4th and is a day when you are encouraged to think before you act. While it's unknown who invented this day, common sense was first spoken of by the great philosopher Aristotle, who described it as the ability with which animals (including humans) process sense perceptions, memories, and imagination to reach many types of judgments. However, French philosopher René Descartes established the modern-day meaning when he stated that everyone has a similar and sufficient amount of common sense, but it is rarely used well. Make Mr. Descartes proud by using your common sense today and every day!

Today in History

In 1948, American humorist and actor Will Rogers was commemorated by the U.S. Postage Service on a 3-cent stamp. Known as “Oklahoma’s Favorite Son,” he began his career in vaudeville and as a circus performer. Rogers became a Hollywood movie star in the 1920s and 1930s.

DID YOU KNOW? A McDonald's on Every Corner!

McDonald's has more locations than any other restaurant in the United States. Montpelier, the smallest state capital in the U.S., with only about 7,500 people, doesn't have a McDonald's, but there's one in the neighboring city of Barre. The farthest you can be from a McDonald's in the U.S. is in northwest Nevada, where it's 135 miles away from the nearest one. It may take a bit of time to get that Big Mac or Quarter Pounder.
