National Houseplant Appreciation Day

One of the best ways to enhance a space is by adding house plants. The busy holidays cause many of us to neglect some of our regular routines, including houseplant care. National Houseplant Appreciation Day on January 10th serves as a reminder to give your houseplants a little extra attention to keep them thriving. Those with green thumbs know that having house plants comes with several benefits; more productivity, less anxiety, cleaner air, and improved humidity. The more plants you have the more effective they are at improving air quality. Humidity is improved when plants release moisture in the air, especially in dry climates and in the winter months. Today is the perfect day to add a plant to your living space!

Today in History

In 1801, William Henry Harrison was appointed the first governor of the Indiana Territory. He was the representative to Gran Columbia and a senator from Ohio before becoming the 9th President of the United States in 1841, and the oldest president to take office until Ronald Reagan.

DID YOU KNOW? Decoding the Deck

Did you know that the four suits in a deck of cards supposedly represent the pillars of the medieval economy? Hearts stand for the church, spades for the military, diamonds for the merchants, and clubs for the farmers. Also, each king supposedly represents a historical figure. The King of Hearts is the only one without a mustache! Whether it's true or just a fun story, it's interesting to think about while playing cards.
