National Lineman Appreciation Day

Today is a day to honor those who work tirelessly around the clock to ensure that we have power. Linemen are responsible for building and maintaining the power grid system that keeps our nation running. They brave dangerous conditions to ensure we have power, sometimes working in trenches, near water, or high towers. These hardworking professionals risk their lives daily to keep the power on and play a crucial role in rebuilding the power grid after natural disasters. They work tirelessly to get emergency systems back in working order and return service to areas without power.

So be sure to thank the unsung heroes who keep our lights on.

Today in History

In 1868, the San Francisco Society for Prevention of Cruelty to Animals was formed by a banker named James Sloan Hutchinson, who witnessed a hog being abused and rescued it. 4,500 animals are adopted each year, and countless animals are rescued after natural disasters.
