National World Poetry Day

One of the most powerful art forms there is, poetry can touch many different people on many different levels. In honor of this wonderful expression, UNESCO declared World Poetry Day at its 30th meeting in Paris in 1999 as a way to “support linguistic diversity through poetic expression and increasing the opportunity for endangered languages to be heard.” With such great poets as Emily Dickinson, Robert Frost, and Maya Angelou, there have been poems written about any and all subjects including war, peace, poverty, dreams, fear, you name it. There are dozens of types of poems and they all can elicit a wide range of emotions.

What’s your favorite poem?
How does it make you feel? Enjoy it and others on World Poetry Day.
