National All Is Ours Day

Every year on April 8th, we mark National All Is Ours Day. It is a day to be grateful for everything we have in life and to pause and consider how beautiful the natural world is. We frequently overlook the abundance of natural resources available to us, such as the diverse range of birds living in our backyards or local parks and the national parks and trail networks. Gazing at the sky or the fresh springtime blooming up close is only one way to enjoy the amazing gift of being aware of our environment.

This day can be celebrated in a variety of ways, such as by counting our blessings and pausing to appreciate what we have in life. When we all work together, sharing what we have can also make difficult times easier.

Today in History

In 1963, Anne Bancroft and Gregory Peck were winners at the 35th Academy Awards. One of 24 actors to achieve the Triple Crown of Acting, Bancroft also won 2 Primetime Emmys and 2 Tony Awards, as well as 3 BAFTA Awards, 2 Golden Globes, and a Cannes Film Festival Award.

DID YOU KNOW? Sobbin' in the Rain

At 19, Debbie Reynolds, with limited dance experience, faced intense training for her role as Kathy Selden alongside the talented Gene Kelly. During rehearsals, she was once found sobbing under a piano by Fred Astaire. The challenging "Good Morning" dance scene left her with bloody feet, yet Kelly ultimately used the first take. Reynolds later recognized his training as valuable but likened the experience to childbirth, calling it one of the two hardest things she'd ever done.
