National Paper Airplane Day

Paper airplanes may not fly as much as they used to, but for some, the folding and flight of paper airplanes is an art form! Prepare for an exciting day of flight on National Paper Airplane Day on May 26th! This special day celebrates the fun and creativity of paper airplane making, which has been around since the early 1900s. You can make your own paper airplanes or participate in a friendly competition with friends.

Whether you're new to paper airplanes or have been folding them since childhood, this is the perfect opportunity to get creative and fly high! How about a friendly paper airplane competition? Maybe try for different categories like distance, aiming for targets, or most decorative planes, and have fun prizes for the winners.

Today in History

In 1887, racetrack betting became legal in the state of New York when the state legislature passed the Ives Pool Law, which made betting legal only on the grounds of the racetrack. In 1897, more than 300 racetracks were in operation in the United States, but by 1910, it was only about 12.

DID YOU KNOW?

Venomous Potential

Venomous caterpillars, though only 2% of species, have unique venoms that may lead to valuable medical discoveries. While snake and scorpion venoms are well-studied, many venomous animals, including caterpillars, remain under-researched. Some caterpillar venoms can cause severe health issues, making them significant public health concerns. Advancements in molecular biology could help explore these venoms, potentially unveiling new drug candidates and informing treatments for pain and other conditions.
