National Archery Day

Known as one of the oldest sports still in existence, National Archery Day on May 11th recognizes one of the oldest sports still in existence. Archery has been around since before 2800 BC, when bows were being used for hunting and battle. Archery reached the Olympics in 1900 when it was introduced as an official event. However, it only appeared again in 1904, 1908, and 1920. Then, after a long absence, archery made its return in 1972.

Archery has steadily grown in popularity and has been noted for some physical benefits, including improving upper body strength and focus, and building confidence and social connections. And unlike some other sports, archery can be practiced and enjoyed all year long!

Today in History

In 2008, Spanish-American musician, singer, comedian, and actress Charo made a guest appearance on the Latin-themed VH1 reality show “Viva Hollywood.” She was a student of the famed classical guitarist Andrés Segovia, whom she mastered on stage.
