Ugliest Dog Day

Everyone has probably heard that all dogs go to heaven, but are they all cute? Those wiry-haired, snaggle-toothed critters may not be pretty, but they can sure be loveable. That's why June 20th is Ugliest Dog Day, so even the homeliest of pups can feel appreciated. Each year at the Sonoma-Marín County Fair, a contest crowns the ugliest dog, with the winner receiving an engraved trophy and a cash prize. Since its inception in the late 1970s, one breed has won the prize a record 22 times—the Chinese Crested.

With their bulging eyes and hairless bodies, the Chinese Crested may not win any real beauty pageants, but they are known to be affectionate companions. The christening of June 20th as Ugliest Dog Day proves that “every dog has his day.”

DID YOU KNOW? Ruth's Historic Salary

Babe Ruth made history in 1930 by becoming the first athlete to earn more than the U.S. president, whose salary was $75,000 during that time. Ruth signed a contract with the New York Yankees worth $80,000 a year, surpassing President Herbert Hoover's pay. When asked about making more than the president, Ruth famously stated, "Why not? I had a better year than he did." By 1949, other baseball stars matched the president's salary.
