National Daughters Day

Thank Heaven for little girls! On September 25th, we celebrate National Daughter's Day and pay tribute to the ladies in our lives! In some countries, daughters face a rough start in the world. They are sometimes denied an education, equal employment, or even healthcare. Sons are put before them and given priority. Social stereotypes set certain expectations of behavior for daughters, including how they dress and behave.

This day offers us an opportunity to be thankful for our daughters and to find ways to ensure that daughters around the world have every opportunity to succeed. Share the day with your daughter by looking back on memories and pictures or creating new ones. Take a selfie with them or send a card.

DID YOU KNOW?

Australia isn't that Large

While it may seem surprising due to its depiction as a single, vast island nation, Australia is smaller than the continent of Europe. Europe covers approximately 10.18 million square kilometers, whereas Australia spans about 7.69 million. This means you could fit the entire continent of Australia into Europe with room to spare. Comprising nearly 50 countries, Europe's collective landmass makes it a geographically more expansive and diverse continental entity than its southern counterpart.
