Use Your Common Sense Day

Common sense often seems to be at a premium, but that doesn't mean we should give up on trying our best to use it! Use Your Common Sense Day is celebrated every November 4th and is a day when you are encouraged to think before you act. While it's unknown who invented this day, common sense was first spoken of by the great philosopher Aristotle, who described it as the ability with which animals (including humans) process sense perceptions, memories, and imagination to reach many types of judgments. However, French philosopher René Descartes established the modern-day meaning when he stated that everyone has a similar and sufficient amount of common sense, but it is rarely used well. Make Mr. Descartes proud by using your common sense today and every day!

Today in History

In 1984, Prince opened his "Purple Rain" tour featuring his new band, "The Revolution," with the first of seven shows at the Joe Louis Arena in Detroit, Michigan. Prince sold over 100 million records worldwide and won seven Grammy Awards, a Golden Globe, and an Academy Award.

DID YOU KNOW? Grandma Knows Worst

Did you know the cult band, The Shaggs, was formed because of a prophecy? Austin Wiggins forced his daughters into music after his mother's palm reading predicted they would achieve fame. The sisters had no musical interest or formal training, creating a uniquely discordant sound on their 1969 album, Philosophy of the World. Though initially mocked, the band was later celebrated as "outsider art" by musicians like Frank Zappa, becoming one of history's most famously "bad" bands.
