International Day of Peaceful Communication

As a day that aims to encourage individuals and governments to solve conflict without resorting to any kind of aggression, the International Day of Peaceful Communication is observed every year around the world on this day. Founded by Ruben M. West in 2019, this day was created in order to raise awareness of the power that peaceful communication holds. As tensions all over the world continue to rise, we must do our part to encourage and engage in calm, rational, well-thought-out conversations so that we as a society can move forward and solve the problems of today and tomorrow. So today, spend some time in peaceful conversation with someone and remember that with peaceful talks and an open mind, almost any conflict can come to an end.

Today in History

In 1916, Georgia Tech beat Cumberland 222-0, the most lopsided score in the history of US college football. Georgia Tech's coach was John Heisman, for whom the Heisman Trophy is named. Nicknamed the "pioneer of Southern football", his greatest contribution was the forward pass.

Discovered in 1938 near Baghdad, a seemingly ordinary jar conceals an intriguing mystery. Inside the jar are a copper tube and an iron rod, leading some to propose it functioned as a battery. Evidence suggests its unique design could generate over 1 volt of electric current. While some archaeologists believe it might have been used for electroplating gold or silver, others argue that it was merely a container for sacred scrolls.
