Beautiful Day

Beautiful Day is an unofficial holiday celebrated on November 20. It's a day to appreciate the beauty in everyday things. The origin of the day is unknown, and it's up to each person to celebrate in their own way. Some people celebrate by enjoying the weather or spending time with friends, while others create something beautiful, like a song or a painting. Look at the smaller things that make something beautiful. What makes the sunset so beautiful are the trees that line the horizon. What about the songs we listen to? Is it the melody or the harmony we enjoy? What things can you find beautiful today?

"Everything has beauty, but not everyone sees it."
– Confucius

Today in History

In 1934, "Children's Hour" premiered in New York City. The play was written by American playwright Lillian Hellman, who was known both for her work on Broadway and for her political activism. Her other Broadway successes included its sequel, "The Little Foxes," and "Toys in the Attic."

DID YOU KNOW? History's Hardest Read

Did you know one of the world's most mysterious books is the Voynich Manuscript? Dated to the early 15th century, this codex is filled with an unknown, elegant script that no one has ever been able to decipher. Its pages feature bizarre illustrations of unidentifiable plants, strange astronomical charts, and mysterious human figures. Despite centuries of study by the world's best cryptographers and linguists, its language, author, and purpose remain a complete and baffling enigma.
