Roots Day

Have you ever looked into your family tree? If not, today is the perfect day to do so! Roots Day is a day that celebrates discovery via genealogy. This is a time of year when people love to get together with their immediate family, but not many people know much about their extended family or exactly where they came from. You could be related to somebody famous and not even know it, or you could be related to someone you wish you weren't!

Either way, delving into your family's past can be exciting nonetheless. Take an ancestry test and explore your ancestral roots today. You might be shocked, for better or worse, at what you find!

Today in History

In 1915, the musical “Very Good Eddie” premiered at the Princess Theatre in New York City. The show was composed by Jerome Kern, who wrote over 700 songs that were featured in more than 100 stage shows. He was nominated for an Academy Award eight times and won twice.

DID YOU KNOW?

Living in a Time Warp

Did you know that many European towns still feature the exact layout and architecture of the Middle Ages? Places like Rothenburg ob der Tauber in Germany and Carcassonne in France are not just ruins, but living, breathing towns. They retain their medieval walls, half-timbered houses, and narrow, winding streets, offering a unique opportunity to wander through a virtually unchanged 14th-century streetscape.
