Inspire Your Heart With Art Day

Always observed on January 31st, Inspire Your Heart With Art Day encourages us to ponder how art affects our hearts and to explore the many genres of art, including ones we may not have encountered before. Art is valued and appreciated for all sorts of reasons. Of the broad spectrum of art created in the world, the pieces that move us to tears, give us pause to think about injustice, or cause us to burst out into joyous laughter remain with us for a lifetime. Whether we are touched by music, mesmerized by dance, or feel as though we see into an artist's soul through their work, art has the power to change us, to inspire our hearts. Today's a great day to listen to music, go to a museum, read, or best of all, create something new on your own or with family or friends. Art is best as a shared experience, after all.

Today in History

DID YOU KNOW?

What Happens to the Tree?

What happens to the Rockefeller Center Christmas tree after the holidays? Rockefeller Center usually selects a Norway spruce as its holiday showstopper. Once the trees come down, the trunks are milled into two-by-four and two-by-six beams that Tishman Speyer donates to Habitat for Humanity and uses to build homes. The lumber is stamped with a Rockefeller Center logo and the year.
