National Hat Day

Hang on to your hats and celebrate in style on National Hat Day.

Celebrated each year on January 15th, the day someone wore a top hat to their day in court, only to be cited for disturbing the public with his choice of headwear. Schools, libraries, museums, and community centers invite others to wear their favorite hats or head coverings, or the ones they wear to work, or perhaps observe their religion. Don your favorite fedora, cap, cloche, derby, or sunhat. There are so many hats, fashions, and names we give them. It seems as though people don't wear hats anymore. Headwear as part of a clothing ensemble has been declining since the 1950s, perhaps due to better heating and cooling, less dependency on public transportation, and more informal dress. So, this day is one to celebrate all things hat!
