Alexander Graham Bell Day

Ring, ring! It's Alexander Graham Bell day! Celebrated every year on March 7th, it marks the day in 1876 when Bell patented the telephone, forever changing how we communicate. This groundbreaking invention revolutionized communication, connecting people across distances and transforming how we interact with the world.

Bell's ingenuity extended beyond the telephone. He was a true inventor, always curious and exploring new ideas. He dreamed of flying machines and even experimented with underwater boats! So on March 7th, take a moment to appreciate the impact of Bell's inventions. Maybe even make a silly phone call to a friend just for fun! It's a day to remember the power of ideas and how they can shape the world around us.

DID YOU KNOW? Global Grub Goals

In Thailand, forget about lifting food with a fork - it's a big no-no! But hey, it's totally cool to nudge your grub onto a spoon using that fork. And if you're in Ethiopia, get cozy with sharing a massive platter with everyone - no plates or forks needed! Just dig into the part right in front of you, and no peeking across the platter. Oh, and when in Italy, don't you dare sprinkle cheese on your pasta as they do at Macaroni Grill - that's a major chef faux pas!
