National Awkward Moments Day

Ever had an awkward moment in your life? Welcome to the human race! Awkward moments happen to everyone at some point or another and often more than once in one's lifetime. Everyone has at least one embarrassing story to tell about something weird and uncomfortable that happened to them. Awkward Moments Day is a day to celebrate those awkward moments in life and laugh them off. Whether your awkward moments are simple things that sort of make you blush or are real whoppers that still make you want to crawl under a rock and die, embrace those stories and get them off your chest today.

Tell a friend about your most awkward moment and share a giggle with them over it.

Today in History

In 1931, Schick Incorporated introduced the first electric razor to the American market. American career officer Jacob Schick was the inventor of the razor, and he obtained a patent in May 1930. Then, he opened a production company in Stamford, CT.

DID YOU KNOW? From Drones to Superstars

Radioplane, a California drone factory, gave Marilyn Monroe—then Norma Jeane—her start on the assembly line. After a coworker urged the Army's PR division to send a photographer, she was scouted for a "Rosie the Riveter" campaign to recruit women during the war. Fascinatingly, the officer who assigned that fateful photographer was none other than Captain Ronald Reagan, unknowingly launching the career of a global icon.
