National No Housework Day

Who doesn't love the idea of a No Housework Day? It was created by Thomas and Ruth Roy at Wellcat.com, and it's a day to take a break from all the cleaning and chores around the house. You don't have to sweep, dust, or do the dishes, and you can even leave the windows dirty for a day! Forget about vacuuming, mopping, or organizing your closet. Just ignore the clutter and postpone all your chores for 24 hours.

Of course, you should still take care of basic sanitary necessities, but you can leave a few dishes in the sink for a change. Instead, spend the day reading a good book or playing board games with your grandkids. Above all enjoy your day off from housework!

DID YOU KNOW?

Mighty Bison

Once, bison roamed the plains by the millions, then almost hunted to extinction. The American bison is now the national mammal of the USA. Together with the bald eagle, the two animals represent the country's amazing beauty, both on land and in the sky. Bison are the largest land mammal in America, and a true symbol of the American West and the nation as a whole. They're also a testimony to the power and potential of nature conservation.
