National Home Front Heroes Day

When members of the military are away from home, whether it be for deployment or training, those who remain at home can have a very difficult time managing things from day to day. May 9th is National Home Front Heroes Day, a day to honor millions of civilians, past and present, who provide support to service members from the home front.

It's a day to say "thank you" to the dedicated heroes who roll up their sleeves and support neighbors, communities, and our nation.

Home Front Heroes makes it possible for military service members to honor their commitment to our nation. As a result, service members have peace of mind, knowing their families, businesses, and communities are taken care of at home.

Today in History

In 1978, the musical "Ain't Misbehavin'" opened on Broadway at the Longacre Theatre. The show was named after the song by jazz musician, singer, and songwriter Fats Waller, who was one of the most popular African-American jazz pianists of the 1930s.

DID YOU KNOW? Quill Quip

Some species of porcupines have as many as 30,000 quills, which lie flat across their body but become erect when they feel threatened. It is a common misconception that porcupines can shoot their quills, but they can't. Instead, they shed old ones, and new quills grow continuously. Although their quills are not poisonous, the quills of New World porcupines can be especially dangerous because they have barbed tips that expand in the warmth and moisture of a wound.
