National Bubba Day

Know a person named “Bubba”? Whether a nickname or an actual first name, June 2nd is “Bubbas” day. Famous Bubbas include former NFL football player and actor Bubba Smith, professional golfer Bubba Watson, and former president Bill “Bubba” Clinton. Often chosen as a nickname by babies who cannot say “brother,” as many as 50 million people are strolling around with a Bubba moniker. In the South, Bubba is a slang name, and also a military name used to refer to someone slower than the other soldiers affectionately. You may remember Benjamin Buford Blue, the soldier friend of Forrest Gump, nicknamed Bubba, and the inspiration for the Bubba Gump Shrimp Company. To all the Bubbas who grace our lives, from fictional characters to brothers to former presidents, we celebrate you!

Today in History

In 1863, abolitionist Harriet Tubman led Union forces in Maryland to liberate enslaved people. After escaping slavery herself in 1849, she dedicated her life to rescues and post-war activism before settling in Auburn, New York.

DID YOU KNOW? No Need to Ride

Alaska has the highest percentage of people who walk to work. That is because Alaska has the highest average gas prices in the country, up to $10 per gallon in some rural areas, and because towns are built close together. It is also the place with the highest rates of pedestrian or bicyclist fatalities since most of those streets are designed with motor vehicles in mind.
