Umbrella Cover Day

When you first got your umbrella, do you remember the cover that came with it? Do you know where it is? These covers, sleeves, or slipcovers (depending on what you call them) deserve some admiration on Umbrella Cover Day. It's thought that the cover would help keep the umbrella in good condition for longer, but now they often end up in the back of a drawer or closet, or maybe even the trash.

That's not the end of the story, though! The humble umbrella cover has a dedicated museum in Portland, Maine, called, you guessed it, the Umbrella Cover Museum. Where did the inspiration come from? Nancy Hoffman was inspired to create the museum after finding several umbrella covers in the back of a closet.

Today in History

In 2002, Serena Williams beat her older sister Venus at Wimbledon. It was her first Wimbledon singles title. Serena has won a total of 32 Major titles, 17 of them in singles, 13 in women's doubles, and 2 in mixed doubles, and she's won over $50 million in prize money.

On April 18, 1930, 94 years ago, the BBC's news announcer had nothing to communicate.

“Good evening. Today is Good Friday. There is no news. So for the rest of the 15-minute segment, piano music was played. What a vast difference from today's 24-hour news channels. It seems like events are happening every second.

Helpful Tip:

If you get stuck, try asking yourself "Where can I place number X in this row or column?" Scan to see if the number is already in that row, column, or box.
