National Punctuation Day

National Punctuation Day commemorates all punctuation on September 24th. A period, a comma, a semicolon, a question mark, and an exclamation point are examples of some of the punctuation used in writing. They separate sentences and their elements to clarify meaning. Across the country, punctuation events test skills, educate, and even poke fun at some of those embarrassing errors. Some people overuse punctuation. It's sometimes hard to read sentences that use too much punctuation as much as sentences that don't have enough. Not to mention, one can get into trouble without the proper comma points. Make it a day where the only controversies are whether to use one space or two after a period and yay or nay to the Oxford Comma!
