Little League Girls Day

On November 7, 1973, the state of New Jersey became the first state to allow girls to play Little League Baseball. The Little League Federal Charter soon followed suit so that girls everywhere could play Little League Baseball, and since then, millions of girls have gotten to partake in America's favorite pastime. This came about because in 1972, eleven-year-old Marcia Pepe of Hoboken, New Jersey, had played three games for her Little League team, the Young Democrats, when the national Little League organization ordered her team to remove her or lose their charter. As news spread, the National Organization for Women reached out to her parents about filing a lawsuit on behalf of girls aged 8–12. If you know a young girl who enjoys baseball, encourage her to play Little League to celebrate this historic day!

Another study found that men were 11 times more likely to experience hiccups than women. However, other studies have found that women are more likely to develop hiccups in early adulthood.
