National Dunce Day

Ever feel like a dunce sometimes? You're not alone! Perhaps you once even had to wear the dunce cap in school. Ever wonder what that was all about? Well, on November 8th, 1308, the medieval scholar Duns Scotus of Duns, Scotland, died, but before he did, he created the famous Dunce cap. He believed that by wearing the cone-shaped hat, knowledge would flow from the point of the cap down and into the head of the wearer, making that person smarter.

Unfortunately, most people nowadays associate the dunce cap with being dumb. However, we still celebrate Dunces Day today, so strap on a Dunces cap and see if you become a little more knowledgeable!
