National Forget-Me-Not Day

Today's special day is a day to honor and support veterans who have returned from service with injuries and disabilities. This day is to engage people in various activities to show their appreciation for disabled veterans. The tradition began in 1921 when Judge Robert S. Marx organized a fundraiser for World War I vets by selling forget-me-not flowers. It highlighted the significant sacrifices they made for our country and emphasized our responsibility to care for them. Marx served during the Meuse-Argonne Offensive. He returned to heal from injuries and to resume the law practice he had before entering the military. Before long, his interest in veterans' affairs became apparent. In 1920, the Disabled American Veterans of World War I was founded, and Judge Marx became the first leader. Today, November 11th, is well established as Veterans' Day or Armistice Day.

Nature's Ultimate Oddball

Australia's platypus is a fascinating creature of contradictions. It lays eggs like a reptile and feeds its young by sweating milk through skin pores rather than using nipples. Male platypuses even deliver a painful venomous sting via hind-leg spurs. Meanwhile, its flexible, leathery bill acts as an electric field detector, allowing the animal to hunt underwater with its eyes shut.

Trivia Answer: B

The word "beau" is a direct borrowing from the French language, where it is an adjective meaning "handsome" or "beautiful." In English, it evolved from an adjective into a noun to describe a fashionable man, and later, a woman's boyfriend or suitor.
